

With a shared love of nature, and especially water, Todd and Amanda Wolter have found northern Michigan a perfect fit for building their lives together. The two had met at Indiana State University where they both received their teaching credentials. But after five years of teaching in Indiana, they decided it was time for a change. Inspired by memories Amanda had of visits to northern Michigan during childhood, they both decided to quit their jobs and move north.

Todd explained there were other motivating factors for choosing to relocate. "Northern Michigan provides fun outdoor activities in all four seasons as well as some affordable property to help us build a small farm." The couple first landed in Manistee while they searched for teaching positions in the tip of the mitt area. Soon they had accepted positions at Alanson schools with Todd teaching English and Amanda becoming the K-12 music teacher. They were happy – working and building their new dream life.

"I love the fact that it is a safe place with caring adults where all kids are welcome."

– Todd Wolter

Then Amanda was pregnant and the unbelievable joy and life fulfillment a baby brings put them on a new path. Both Amanda and Todd wanted Talula to have her first impressionable years at home with one of her parents. They both agreed that Todd would leave his teaching position to be a full-time caregiver for their new precious family addition.

Like most new parents, Todd began seeking activities for Talula outside their home and one of the first stops for them was the public library. Having books be a part of Talula's everyday life was important and by 18 months, Talula had developed a strong attachment to books and listening to stories. Todd was impressed with the Petoskey District Library, calling it "one of the best children's libraries that you can come across in a rural town." He loves the layout and choices the Petoskey Library offers. He said he truly appreciates the fact that each week there are new books available to bring home and share. Todd also enjoys seeing Talula play with friends she's made at the library. She runs into the children's room and counts every little person as her friend – whether she has met them or not!

It was important for Todd to provide an environment that would help Talula not only learn to read, but to socialize with other caring adults and little ones her own age. Storytime at the Library is "hands down, one of the best things to do each week," Todd said. Talula gets to interact with Megan, the children's librarian, and all the other children. It is one of Talula's favorite activities each week. The books, songs, and finger plays are repeated, and repeated, and repeated again, until the next week's storytime changes that repetition.

Petoskey Library Board members and staff just said goodbye to our first student trustee.

Last year the Library Board added a non-voting student member. Students eligible to serve on the board include all high school juniors and seniors who live within the Library's service area of the City of Petoskey and the townships of Bear Creek, Little Traverse, Resort, and Springvale. The board decided this would be a good way to connect with the younger population and give them a voice on what happens at the Library. I have to say that I was a bit skeptical about whether any kids would be interested and if that student would be effective. Well, once again, kids rose up and met the challenge.

As an aside, anyone complaining about the "new generation" must not know many teens. Young people today are smart, empathetic, and willing to stand up and do good work. I have much hope for our world because I see who is coming our way.

We were certainly pleased with the applicants we had. It made the decision difficult, but the process worked. We found a superb addition to our board in Isabel Dunn. She took the challenge seriously, did her homework, attended meetings, and voiced her opinions. She had some difficult moments to get through, but she had the gumption and calm demeanor to do the job of listening and trying to find good solutions. Isabel was a great student to help us tweak our requirements and application process for new members.

While at the time of writing, we do not have our new student on board yet, they should be appointed sometime by early June. Follow our social media or check our website for the announcement. Whomever you are, I look forward to working with you and hearing your ideas for the Library. And a big thank you to Isabel for a job well done! We wish her the best of fortune in her future endeavors.

Reading groups will compare these works written in Yiddish in the early and mid-20th century to works by contemporary writers from all across the globe.

The discussions started at the Petoskey District Library on April 24, followed by another on May 22, when participants discussed several short stories.

Learning to read is the first thing children do when they begin their school career and prepping them for that adventure is part of parenting. Talula, who just turned three, has a very large vocabulary partly because of stories she hears during story time and books shared each week. Todd explained that the "public library is the epitome of a democratic system and I love the fact that it is a safe place with caring adults where all kids are welcome." Talula just lights up when they arrive and says hello to Belfry the owl when entering the children's room.

Talula loves the Library for the joy it brings. She gets to play with her friends, find new story adventures, play with toys, and have fun with new and caring grownups. Todd and Amanda love the Library because all those things strengthen Talula's path towards reading. They look forward to their every visit – knowing that not only is it fun, but it offers the joy of watching your child learn and develop and strengthen reading skills and provides great ideas to support Talula at home. Todd and Amanda know Talula will be a successful student because of the "solid foundation of reading she is getting from the Library."
